MEDICINAL.

Narrow Chests.

The old theory that consumption was inherited is utterly discredited by modern medicine. The germs of consumption must be received from without. These germs are everywhere. They are constantly being received and cast out by the healthy system. It is the narrow chested whose inheritance is weakness who fall a prey to consumption because they are too weak of lung to resist and throw off disease.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes weak lungs strong. It cures obstinate deep-seated coughs, bleeding lungs, weakness, emaciation and other conditions which if neglected or unsuitably treated find a fatal termination in consumption.

$3,000 FORFEIT will be paid by the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y., if they cannot show the original signature of the individual volunteering the testimonial below, and also of the writers of every testimonial among the thousands which they are constantly publishing, thus proving their genuineness.

"In the spring of 1900 I was taken with hemorrhage of the lungs, and became very weak and short of breath, lost flesh and had no appetite," writes Mr. E. L. Robinson, of Xerxes, Tenn. "I was persuaded to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The first few bottles seemed to do me but little good. Thought I would soon be a victim of that dreaded disease. Had almost given up in despair when my friends persuaded me to give your Golden Medical Discovery a fair trial. I weighed myself at 120 pounds now, and when I commenced I only weighed 140 pounds. If any one doubts this statement I will be pleased to answer any inquiry."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." Nothing is "just as good." Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from impurities.

JOHN WARWICK DANIEL.

A genuine Southron, a gentleman from Virginia, of the old stock and of clearest title to the much abused "F. F. V." with all the graces and outward marks of that distinction, was the lion of the great dinner of the Boston Merchants' Association last week. Senator John Warwick Daniel, of General Early's staff in the war of the States, which practically began and ended in his own State, looks every inch the southern Senator, not to say Virginia major. From the moment the company was seated Senator Daniel was "the cynosure of all eyes" from the very distinction of his appearance, and when the speaking began he gathered all hearts to himself by his superb speech. Not that there was anything singular in his appearance, but a certain power radiated from his finely cut countenance. Not of commanding stature, he nevertheless, somehow loomed at the head of the table in a way that made where he sat the centre of the picture. After he had done speaking, even, with that unconscious grace of kindness that is the power of the perfect gentleman, he immediately became the best of listeners, turning respectfully so as to present his own face to the speakers at his side and help concentrate attention for their benefit. Thus came into view his profile, and that was not less picturesque than the front face.

Both views represented that type of American face, with thin, straight, slightly aquiline nose, clean upper lip and firm pointed chin, that make the Washington type of face. One could easily believe that this Major Daniel of Lynchburg, now United States Senator (to whom Senator Hoar goes out of his way in his recent book to pay a most charming personal tribute for his dignity, ability and character) must be a relative at least, perhaps a cousin or a nephew of the famous Richmond Examiner editor, John McCreary Daniel, publicist, litterateur, practitioner of the code of honor on the duelling field, and yet—in kinship with the intrepid and independent—the friend of Theodore Parker and of Poe, a stormy petrel in Italy as American minister before Italy was united, and an equally stormy statesman inside the Southern Confederacy attacking Jefferson Davis and fighting duels to the last to back up his editorials, and yet all the time stopping to spell public "public" and politics "politics" in his leaders, as in honor bound to maintain the finish and dignity of his English prose of the old Spectator style—surely this John Warwick Daniel of Lynchburg must have had forebears in common with the Richmond Examiner Daniel.

Such a Southron's hair, even, is "worn with a difference." Would any northerner not an actor fail to keep his hair clipped and shingled? The southern statesman's still dark and plentiful locks are what the French call "boucic" over his ears and hang full on his neck. They are not rolled under in the old style, yet worn long like Mr. Bryan's, and this was undoubtedly why he presented so striking a figure, a cross between the Virginia-Washington type, and that of the Nebraska Bryan. All the world is a good listener when fine oratory is going forward. All the world loves an orator and always have done so, to judge by the classics that have come down to us from the ancients, although the compelling magnetism of the real orator cannot be set down in cold type, nor even communicated to complete conviction by tradition, any more than the great actor's secret of power can be. We still have to take our Daniel Webster on the faith of the generations who saw him, who felt the majesty of the man, the power of his voice and the depth of his eyes. But before Senator Daniel spoke the other night he had exercised something of the hypnotism of Daniel Webster—and any irreverent Yankee who didn't know but he might turn out to have also something of the Daniel Pratt in him jumped up to cheer with the rest when he had spoken. It was the same kind of conquest, no doubt, as that achieved the other day by Ambassador Choate's guest in London, which drew from the Thunderer itself the comment that Mr. Bryan's speech was one of power, of true dignity and rare beauty.—[Boston Evening Transcript.]

MISSIONARY MURDERED.

Minister Lyons has reported to the State Department from Monrovia, Liberia, under date of November 4 last, the details of the massacre in the depths of an African forest of a white missionary named John G. Tate, with all his following, eighteen in number. It appears that the massacre took place as far back as March 15, 1901, yet this, the first detailed account, has just come to hand in an affidavit by Mrs. Mary L. Allen, a white missionary at Nouna Kroo, Liberia. She had the story from some of the native Doo tribesmen who knew of the killing. Tate had a large mission and farm, and besides, he maintained a considerable school in the jungle, and altogether nineteen people were in the mission when it was surrounded in the night by the Doo. The first man who answered a knock at the door was shot. The interpreter next was shot, and as Tate appeared and tried to protect the body of the interpreter he

MISS MAY MARKELL,

A Society Belle of London, Canada.

MISS MAY MARKELL of London, Ontario, Canada, is a beautiful girl who knows what suffering is and Wine of Cardui has brought her back to health. She is one of the social favorites of her home and her recovery to health has permitted her to enjoy the company of her many friends instead of lying on a bed of sickness and suffering. For the health she now enjoys she gives credit to Wine of Cardui. She writes: "I have found Wine of Cardui an excellent remedy for female trouble. I suffered for three years with terrible bearing-down pains at the menstrual period. I could hardly stand on my feet and was never real well. Wine of Cardui was the only medicine that I could depend on to do me any good, as I tried several with no success. Wine of Cardui cured me and I have now enjoyed perfect health for two years, and give you all the credit for I know you deserve it."

too, was shot and cut to pieces. The Doo then killed all the remaining inmates of the house, cut off their hands, and placing the bloody members in a coffin, sent them back to their people as trophies.

To improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion, try a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. H. Seitz, of Detroit, Mich., says, "They restored my appetite when impaired, relieved me of a bloated feeling and caused a pleasant and satisfactory movement of the bowels." There are people in this community who need just such a medicine. For sale by Richard Gibson. Every box warranted.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price, including shipping, 75c. in 75c. bottles, or by mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.
